Bio: Donna Baratta learned about color and design at her artistic mother's knee. She built foundational knowledge of her own in college and while working in the home sewing industry. She is fascinated with color, texture, and form in infinite combinations which lead to her passion creating hand crafted, wearable art jewelry using materials such as polymer clay, custom made silk Arashi shibori ribbon, and beads that are embroidered and woven. This mixed media approach allows her to continue learning and exploring new possibilities with each block of clay and every stitch.
